“The world stands on three things: on Torah, worship, and loving deeds of kindness” Ethics of the Fathers 1:2

Of all the things I love about Shabbat, being a part of Saturday morning Torah study is one of my absolute favorites! Ask anyone who attends regularly, and they will tell you that the time we spend together is something they look forward to all week. Not only do we explore the Torah portion from many different angles, but we also come away knowing more about each other and about ourselves.

I must say that sometimes I love to find a quiet spot and cuddle up with a good book or watch a great film. However, when I learn something together with others, when I study Torah together, I come away with an even greater understanding and greater appreciation for the amazing people I study with.

At Torah study, there are no prerequisites except for curiosity. We love welcoming everyone. It does not matter if you have spent years in Hebrew school, are new to Temple, or new to Judaism. Fortunately, what makes the learning experience so great is precisely the different backgrounds, different perspectives and collected life experiences that each of us brings to unpacking and unlocking these Jewish texts.

While there is more information available on the internet than ever before, having a rabbi as your spiritual guide through these rich texts is invaluable. While no one is required to ask questions, it is the questions that carry us deeper into conversation, refine our thinking and I believe that it is the questions that make Torah really shine.

This idea of learning Torah with others, with an open mind and full of questions goes back thousands of years:

Our Sages taught, “The Torah can only be acquired by learning with others, as is in the verse ‘A sword is upon the badim (a Hebrew word implying separateness) and they shall become foolish; a sword is upon its mighty men, and they shall become dismayed’ (Jeremiah. 50:36). From this we learn that a sword is placed upon Torah scholars who learn alone...and what’s more, they become foolish...” (Talmud Berachot 63b).

Our rabbis have a tendency to exaggerate to make a point. Here they say that not only is it beneficial to study Torah in a group but go so far as to warn us about certain dangers of studying on one’s own. Studying with others will encourage us to be aware of different interpretations, perspectives, and opinions. Studying with others will help us articulate our ideas more precisely. Studying with others will remind us that the Torah was given to all of us as an inheritance.

The Hebrew word for someone you study Torah with is chavrutah, which is related to the words for friend, chaver. When we study Torah together at regular times, we create a learning community. We become more than classmates, we become chavrutahs. Each Saturday morning, we have a chance to reconnect and share our joys and joys together. Each Saturday morning, we have a chance to hear what questions the Torah is asking us to think about. Each Saturday morning, we have a chance to tap into our past experiences and see where our voice fits into the history of Jewish wisdom.

Torah study is an ongoing pursuit, a state of mind, not about knowing the most. It is a mindful practice that becomes an essential part of your life. Each of us is on a journey and the Torah is our map.

There is a wonderful story that exemplifies how curiosity is at the heart of learning Torah.

After hearing that all the students were exceptional, Reb Leib Rubin decided that the only way to find out for sure who would be a good student appropriate for his daughter was to check himself.

Accordingly, he delivered a lecture in the yeshiva academy followed by a difficult question posed to the students. Left unsaid was that the one who could answer the question would earn his daughter's hand in marriage. Silence, long silence, filled the room. No one in the hall crammed with supposed genius students could resolve the difficulty. It was therefore time for Reb Leib to depart and continue his search elsewhere. Rabbi Rubin had already loaded his wagon and was clippity-clopping out of Radin when a panting student, Yosef Shlomo Kahaneman ran up and begged, "Rebbe, you asked a difficult question, but what is the answer? I want to know the answer! With that one dramatic act, which displayed his true thirst for learning, the young man had also answered the real question of who was deserving to marry his daughter!

The essence of the tale is not about how to find a good shidduch match! This story teaches us that each of us can partake in this pursuit of Torah study when we are open minded to learning. Each week as we travel through life, studying Torah as a group can help orient us, guide us and give us the spiritual direction we need.

As we prepare for the Shavuot holiday, the day associated with Matan Torah, the giving of the Torah on Mt. Sinai, we remember that all of the Israelites gathered around Mt. Sinai. The symbolism here is so powerful. Each of us are inheritors of Torah and are invited to take part in this wonderful experience of Torah study. I look forward to seeing you at our weekly Saturday morning Torah study. If you are interested or have any questions, kindly let me know!

Here are some statements from rabbinic tradition that aptly sum up the importance of Torah study.

- "Make your home a regular meeting place for scholars" (Ethics of the Fathers 1:4).

- "Be a disciple of Aaron: love peace and pursue it, love your neighbors, and attract them to Torah" (Ethics of the Fathers 1:12).

- "Shammai taught: Make the study of Torah your primary pursuit" (Ethics of the Fathers 1:15).

- "One who has acquired Torah has acquired eternal life" (Ethics of the Fathers 2:8).

- "If you have studied much Torah, your reward will be abundant" (Ethics of the Fathers 2:21).

- "The Torah is a tree of life to those who cling to it. All who uphold it are happy" (Proverbs 3:18).

- "If you truly wish your children to study Torah, study it yourself in their presence. They will follow your example. Otherwise, they will not themselves study Torah but will simply instruct their children to do so" (Rabbi Menahem Mendel of Kotzk).

News from the Executive Director

Dear TJ Family,

On behalf of the clergy, the staff, Jason Haselkorn, President, and the entire Board of Trustees, I want to say THANK YOU for another inspiring, meaningful, joyous, and financially sound, fiscal year. While the past two years have continued to challenge all of us, we feel so fortunate that “we are in this together”. We often remark – “we have the most unusual, special, giving, and supportive temple members any clergy or professional leader could have.” It is not something anyone takes for granted, and it truly makes this a family, not a job. The Annual Report was mailed in mid-May. We hope you received your copy! In it you will find reports from our clergy, President, Treasurer, and a listing of all the contributions received this past fiscal year. I am entering my tenth year at TJ, and I am proud to say - every year this report grows more robust. Thank you for being our partners in creating this sacred community!

As we look to the upcoming fiscal year which runs June 1 – May 31, we are planning for a “full year” with so many special celebrations, worship experiences, learning opportunities, and of course, it is our hope to share in your simchas as well! Please consider sponsoring the Friday night Oneg ($360) in honor of your birthday, anniversary, birth of a child or grandchild, special milestone, recovery from illness, or just because! Our clergy will call oneg sponsors to the bimah to light the candles and say the kiddush as well as offer a special blessing. If you are interested, please call the office at 561-624-4633 and ask for Randi or email randi@gotj.org.

We have created a magazine with all our offerings (or at least all the offerings we know about as of this publication! We always add more throughout the year. 😊) If you did not receive the magazine, please contact the office for a copy and be sure to “save the dates” for some of our special highlights like Cantor Abbie’s concert on February 13 and Rabbi Yaron’s “Bar Mitzvah” – celebrating his 13 years at TJ – on Saturday, January 21, 2023.

Finally, we continuously monitor the local positivity rates for COVID – 19. We know the transmission rates have been increasing but they are still below our threshold for changing our current policies. Should we need to make any changes, we will communicate them in our weekly email blasts. Please know that you can participate in most of our activities via Livestream. Simply go to our website at www.gotj.org and click on “Virtual TJ”.

Respectfully,

Morli

MODERN MUSSAR

How to be Happier, Kinder & More Content ...No Kidding!

Mussar is the ancient Jewish practice of refining one's middot, or character traits, with origins going back to ancient texts. For many years, studying character traits and good behaviors were often ignored in the traditional yeshivas in favor of Talmud/law study.

The Modern Mussar movement was founded in Europe in response to a perception that Jews had become too focused on rote mitzvah observance at the expense of deliberate ethical behaviors.

This is a two-part class. While many sources will be used and referenced, the class is asked to buy "Everyday Holiness" by Alan Morinis, which will be our primary text.

Part One - THURSDAYS at 10:45 a.m. July 7, July 14, July 21, July 28

The Origins of Mussar, Altruism vs. Keeping Score, Modern Mussar and How it is Used Today, How Change Happens, The Importance of Persistence, How to Practice Mussar Every Day, An Introduction to the Middot

Part Two will run 13 weeks - Beginning in SEPTEMBER on Thursdays at 10:45 a.m.

Each week we will engage with a different Middah/trait as outlined in "Everyday Holiness".

We will discover that while we all share common traits, we all have them in different measures.

This will lead each participant to their own path towards spiritual and personal refinement, and we'll begin that journey together.

In fairness to the people who start at the beginning, anyone who misses Part One but wants to join Part Two will need to read all the material we cover in Part One, and possibly attend a "catch-up" session

Registration is REQUIRED and CLASS SIZE IS LIMITED. To register - call Randi at 561-624-4633 or email randi@gotj.org.

Class will be co-taught by Michael Ross and JoEllen Alvarez, TJ Members, and Rabbi Feivel
